This publication is a hybrid document published as a pdf for both reading and sharing by projecting as slides.

It is in this A4 format to make it easy to print and also to project as slides.

It is graphical with limited text to make it easy to use across a wide range of European languages.

Some of the pages work well when projected as slides. The pages with more text are better read as part of the document in pdf format.

It is important to note in relation to the Ubuntu Logo (page 1 and elsewhere), that it is used as analogy to exploring a new computer operating system or in other words a new way of thinking. Ubuntu is a Linux based computer operating system, made available as an alternative to Windows. This document is NOT referring to or endorsing any philosophy commonly called Ubuntu. The reference is only to the free, open source computer operating system called Ubuntu. See image credits for the source of the Ubuntu logo.

Using Why can't they hear us? in church and small groups:

Some of these slides can be useful for discussion in church and small groups. Different slides will be helpful to different groups. If you use just a selection of slides, make sure you attribute the full document, where people can find it and Duncan Bayliss as author.

*My hope is that Why can't they hear us? will be discussed in groups by Adventists and catalyse out-reach to secular people*

Why can't they hear us? – What is it about?

The aim is to catalyse a conversation across the Adventist church in Europe about how to become more effective at reaching people who are secular and do not have a Christian background

It is a difficult challenge and there is no simple formula to follow

“Always be prepared to give an answer to everyone who asks you to give the reason for the hope that you have. But do this with gentleness and respect.”

1 Peter 3:15

Why can't they hear us? – What is discussed?

We will:

1 Consider the scale of the challenge in reaching secular people in Europe

2 Identify some of the dimensions of the problem

3 Look at some ideas being suggested as part of the solution

4 Look at some examples of ideas and content we can share to help secular people come to faith in Jesus

Why does what we say seem like water off a duck's back?

The scale of the challenge

The church across Europe is growing almost entirely by migration (people who are already Adventists moving in) and organic growth (children of Adventists) not mission, with a few exceptions

We have been good at systematic theology, but weak on mission and discipleship

Context: The UK and Ireland as an example

44,000 Adventists across the UK and Ireland in total

Approx. 1000 annual growth, mostly migration

Probably no more than 100 people from a non-Christian background are joining the church each year out of nearly 70 million population! Thus the church is having little impact on wider society

Reaching secular Ireland and Britain, it is as though we are starting from Zero. It is the same across most of Europe

AND what is more concerning - we have not been sure what to do about it....

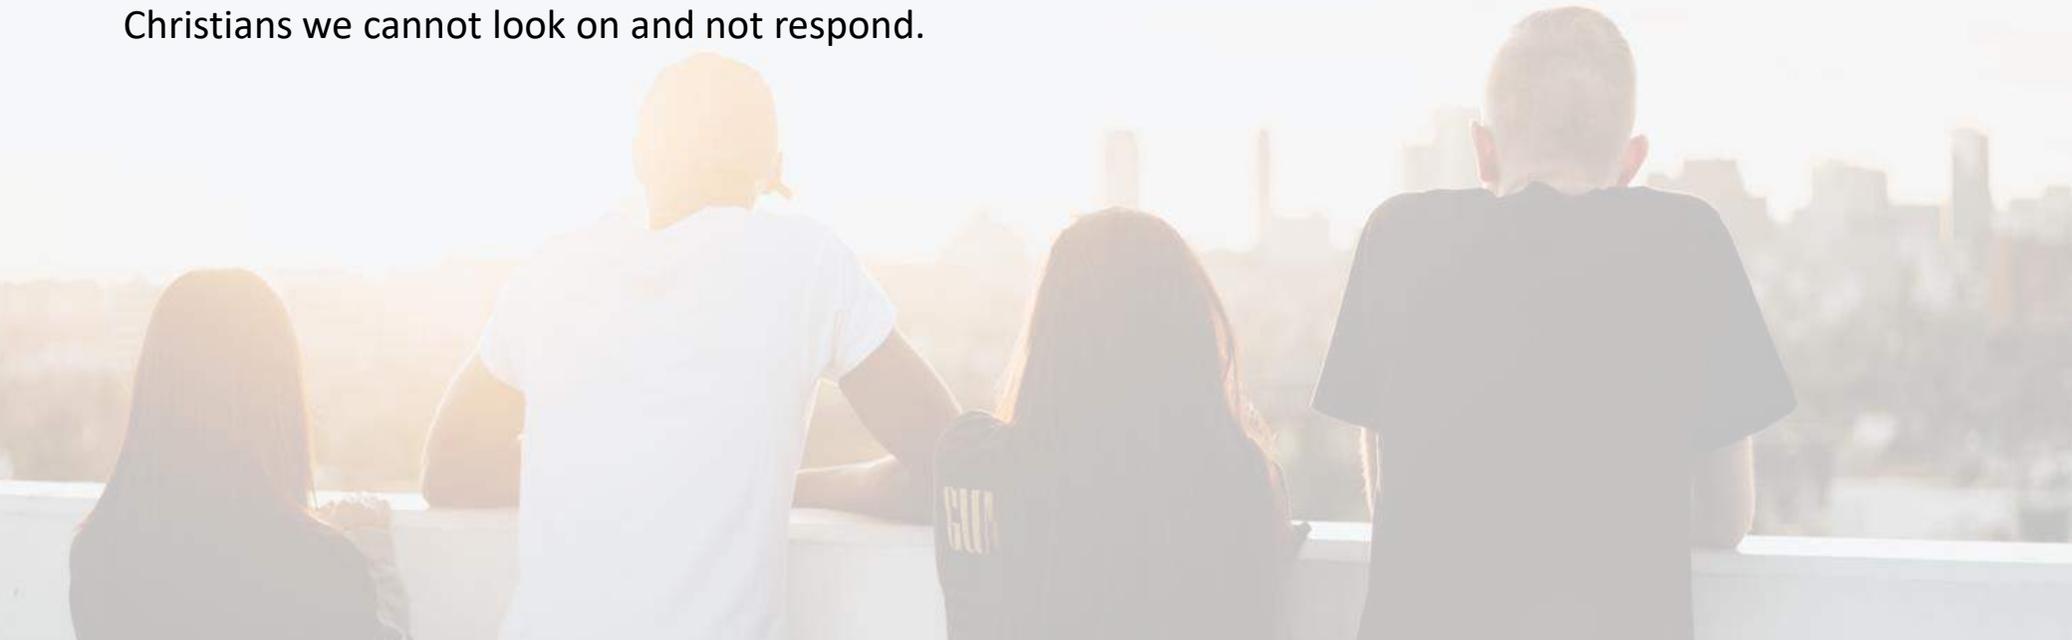

Secular people are one of the hardest groups to reach with the gospel worldwide

The impact of secularism

Secularism has done as much to draw away young people from church as any persecution that the church faced in 2000 years

Understanding and responding effectively to secularism is essential for reaching people with no Christian background in Europe and other secular contexts. It is also essential for helping young people growing up in Christian homes to respond to the challenge of secularism and retain faith in Jesus.

Secularism is no respecter of class, education, ethnicity or any other aspect of a person's background. It represents a set of ideas and a way of looking at the world that has been very effective at undermining the faith of millions. It has left millions more without hope, often seeing no way out of despair. As Christians we cannot look on and not respond.

A multi-dimensional challenge

It is a spiritual battle, not an academic one

“The man without the Spirit does not accept the things that come from the Spirit of God, for they are foolishness to him, and he cannot understand them, because they are spiritually discerned.” 1 Corinthians 2:14

“The God of this age has blinded the minds on unbelievers, so that they cannot see the light of the gospel of the glory of Christ, who is the image of God.” 2 Corinthians 4:4

But people do need content to respond to “Faith comes from hearing the message, and the message is heard through the word of Christ.” Romans 9:17

And we must do all we can to communicate it effectively

“I have become all things to all men so that by all possible means I might save some.” 1 Corinthians 9:22

Why can't they hear us?

Why can't they hear us? is an attempt to crystallise what Adventists already know about the scale of the challenge in reaching secular society with the good news about Jesus, and to encourage us that we can rise to that challenge because "with God everything is possible."

We must do some honest soul searching as to why we have not been reaching secular people very effectively.

That means understanding how they think and finding ways to start conversations with people that start much further back than we have been used to doing – what might be called pre-evangelism.

It means meeting people where they are at rather than expecting them to come to us.

We need to understand the problem in reaching secular people and finding effective ways to share our faith with them.

Why can't they hear us? covers a lot of ideas that can be quite challenging to engage with, yet it is only a start of the journey into this important topic.

Are you willing to be one of the people who makes this a challenge you take on personally, to help your local church become more effective at reaching out?

Secular people are one of the hardest groups to reach with the gospel worldwide

Become part of the solution!

Traditional approaches to evangelism, such as public meetings, have proven ineffective for some time now in secular Europe.

We can find new ways to share our faith and a lot of good ideas are already being used, but it is still a challenge for most churches to visualise what we can do differently that can be more effective.

There are no quick easy answers. No-one has a simple solution.

This requires long term engagement and needs a willingness to not just measure success in numbers baptised.

Let's look at the journey to faith that people with no Christian background might take.

What obstacles they might find on that journey? How can we start to understand what we can do to help?

It means not assuming the structure of a Christian worldview in the minds of people we talk with.

“Pre-evangelism is no soft option.” Francis Schaeffer in, ‘The God Who is There’

This is a journey of discovery for Adventists as much as it is for secular people exploring faith

What does the journey to faith look like??

Let's consider first of all what the journey to faith might look like for secular people who are starting from a position of knowing very little about Jesus or God or faith.

Then we will look at some typical barriers to secular people becoming Christians. We will focus on how they think, that is their worldview

The journey to faith in Jesus

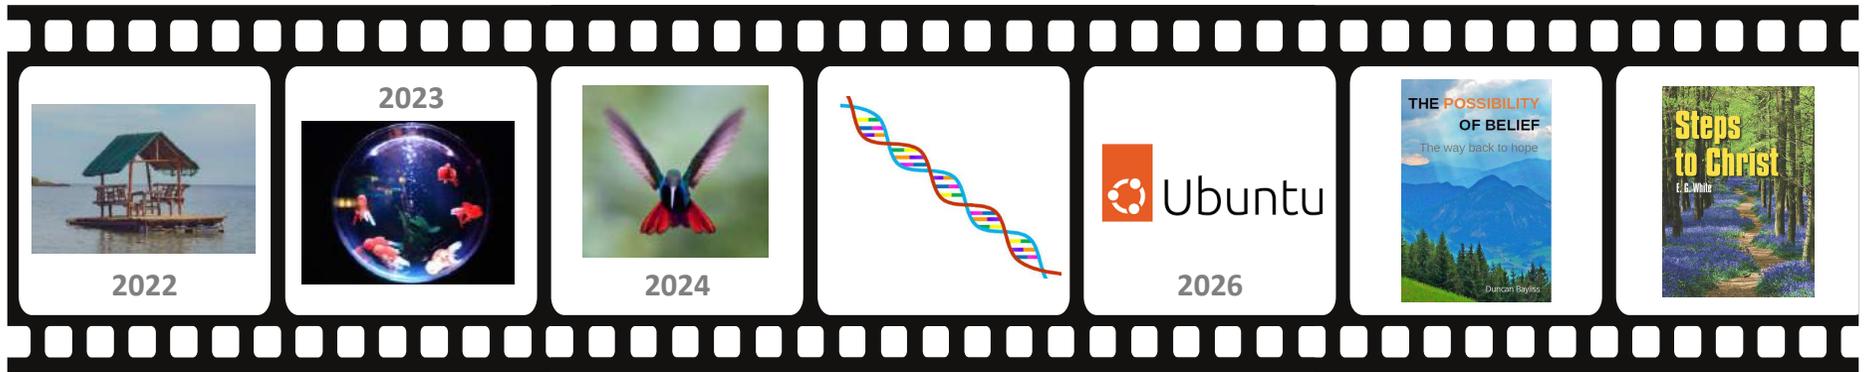

It starts before we see it

Where does the story start?

How do we introduce a whole new dimension?

Is there a ladder of evidence to belief?

So that a book like this makes sense

What do we talk about?

How do people develop a whole new way of thinking?

How long is their journey?

Understanding where people are and the journey they need to take is essential

The journey can be long and it continues for life...

When a book like this starts to make sense

Coming to the cross is not the end

Church can seem a long way off

When is the secular person "home"?

This book can still be hard to understand

The journey continues

And all the details can be a lot to take in

In the past we have assumed that people are starting here and can move rapidly

to here

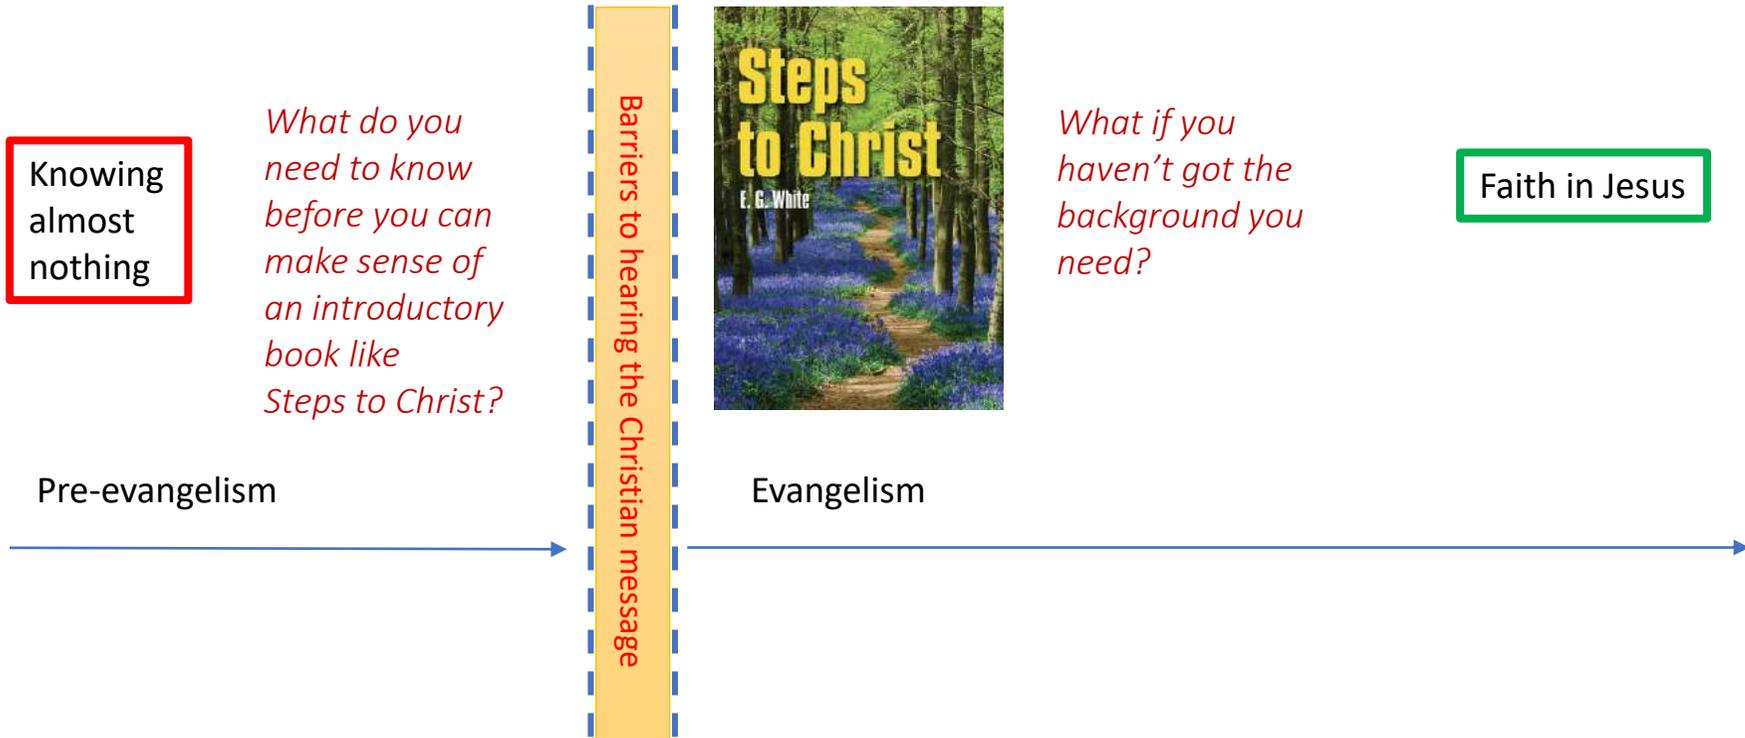

Secular people are likely to need to encounter the following to come to faith in Jesus

- 1 Solid evidence that Christian faith is reasonable and not a leap in the dark
 - 2 Loving, patient, friendly, Christians who are part of a welcoming supportive Christian community
 - 3 The truth of the good news about Jesus as Lord and Saviour, and they will typically need to hear it many times in different ways for it to sink in
 - 4 A personal experience of the deep conviction of the Holy Spirit that Jesus is alive and loves them
- They may well also need:
- 5 Emotional and psychological healing and possibly deliverance from spiritual oppression
 - 6 Time to experience the reality of faith in action while they build up their understanding of what it means to be a disciple of Jesus

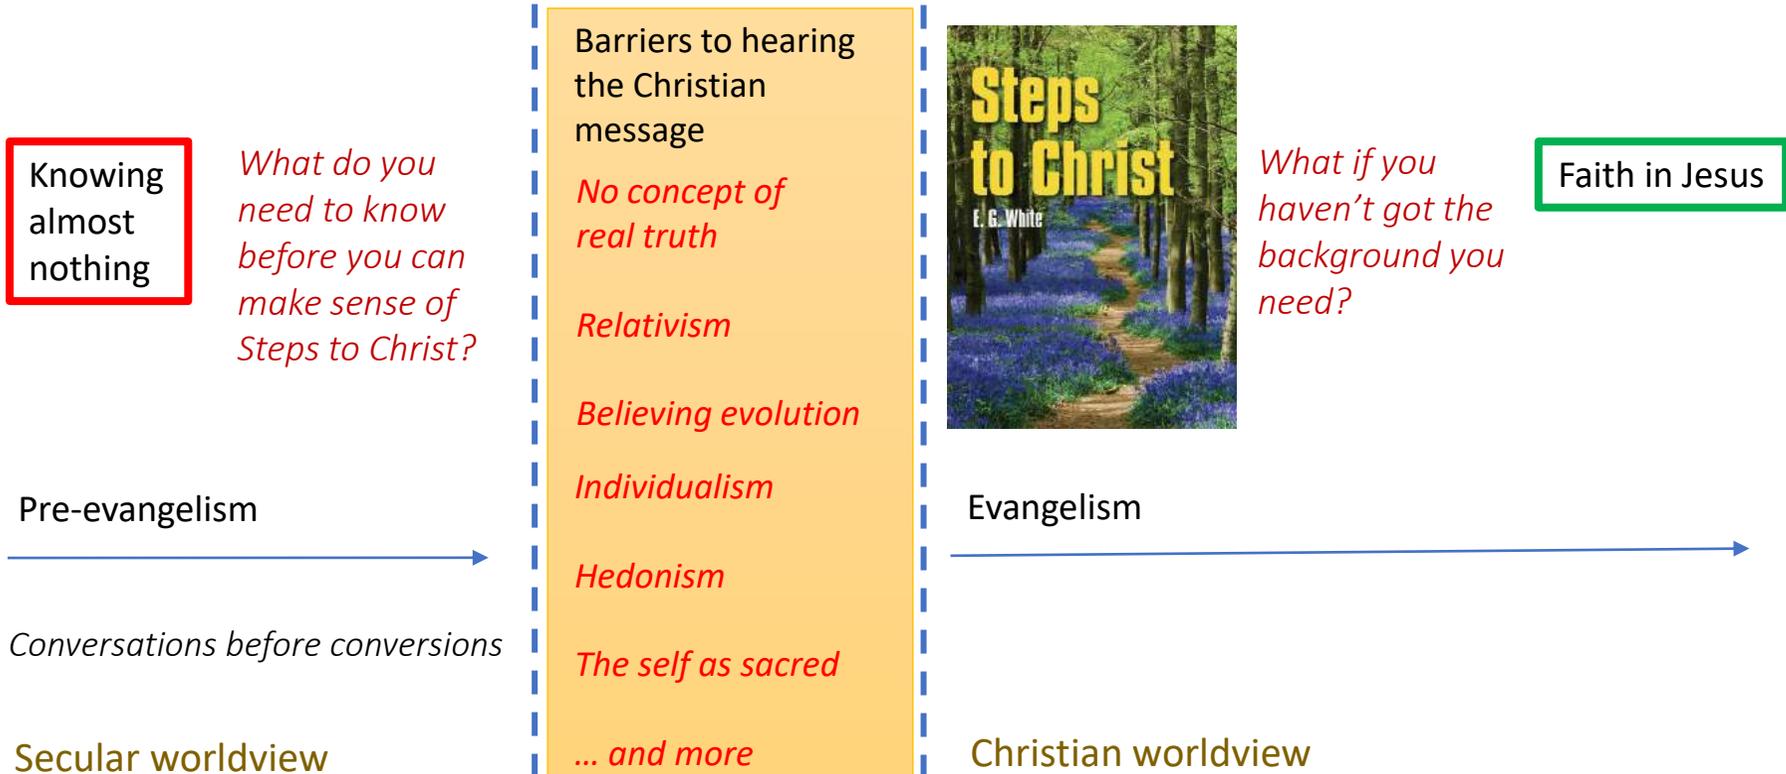

What do we mean by pre-evangelism?

Overcoming barriers to hearing the Christian message

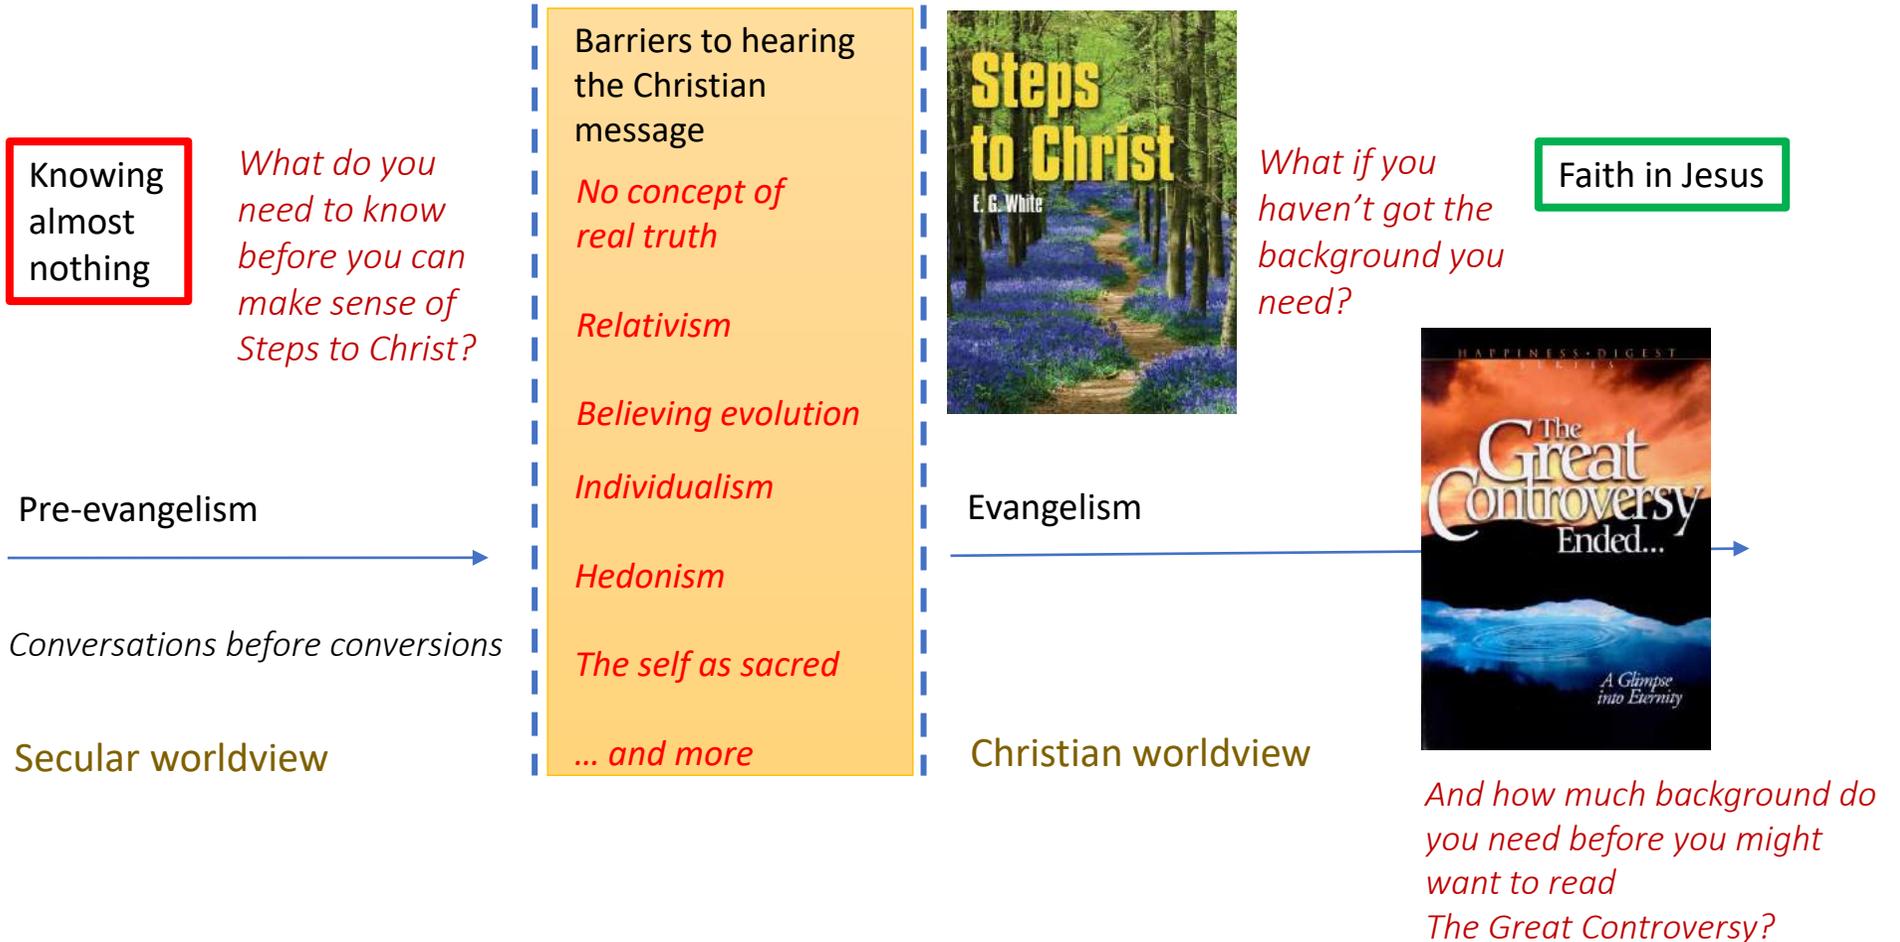

What do we mean by pre-evangelism?

We can add some detail to the problem

What do we mean by pre-evangelism?

A word of caution about pre-evangelism?

We can look at the dimensions of the challenge in reaching secular people

We can consider some principles to work with

But there is no set formula

People are individuals and we must be sensitive to their situation

This requires much prayer and help from God

It is a task beyond our ability, the hard evidence bears that out, we must pray for God to awaken faith

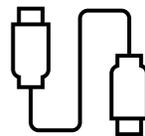

Can we keep doing what we have done in the past expecting it to somehow work in future?

"I have become all things to all men so that by all possible means I might save some." 1 Corinthians 9:22

"By all possible means"!

Can we endlessly recycle old approaches?

If the Apostle Paul was trying to take Christianity to secular people in Europe today, what would "by all possible means" actually mean?

The truth does not change, but how we communicate and connect with people does change

Who do the approaches we have used work for?

In Europe we are talking to a shrinking part of society who can still hear us clearly

*How big is the part that we can still communicate with effectively?
50%, 30%, 20%?*

But always remember that the approaches we have used before still work for some people

Information alone does not make people become Christians, but neither does just being 'nice'

Is there just one Adventist way of doing things?

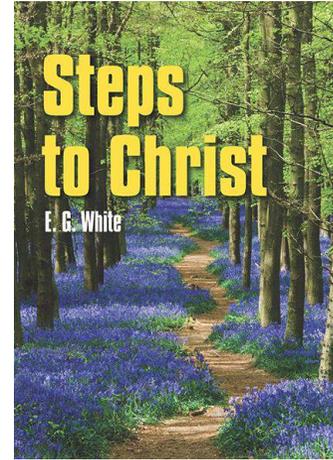

“Whatever may have been your former practice, it is not necessary to repeat it again and again in the same way. God would have new and untried methods followed... to surprise people.”

“Let every worker.. study, plan devise methods to reach the people where they are. We must do something out of the common course of things. We must arrest the attention.”

“They must make use of every means that can possibly be decided for causing the truth to stand out clearly and distinctly, ... plainly and decidedly.”

Ellen G. White in Evangelism

*Isn't this the same as the Apostle Paul saying “By all possible means?”
1 Corinthians 9:22*

“God never asks us to believe without giving sufficient evidence upon which to base our faith.”

Ellen. G. White Steps to Christ, chapter 12

What is the sufficient evidence that secular people need?

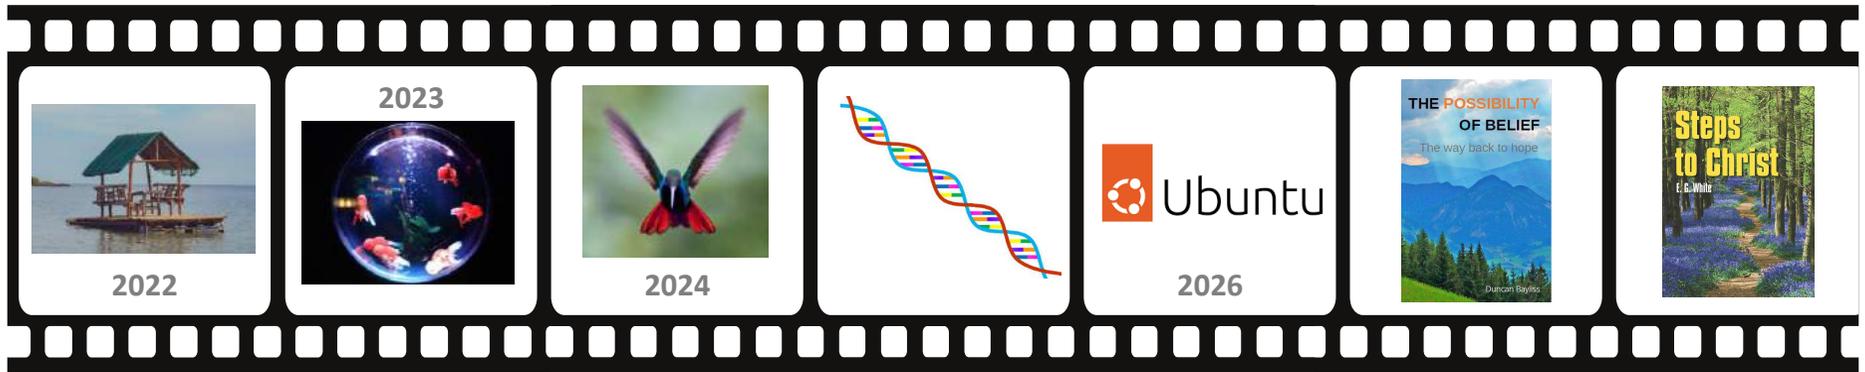

Mapping the journey of faith onto life stories

Becoming aware

Understanding
the basics

Recognizing credibility
of Christianity

Realizing what Christians have been saying all along

Seeing relevance

Trying it out

Exploring more detail

Their journey starts before we even see it

*Not everyone will take the same route,
but there are some typical steps*

The journeys of new believers will often be long

Christian books start to make sense

Finding emotional and spiritual healing and a new freedom in Jesus

Being part of church life in all its dimensions

When is the secular person "home"?

Deeper understanding of truth becomes possible

Commitment to be a disciple

Understanding more truth

Is church the destination?

We need to focus on life-long discipleship not baptisms

Our challenge to secular friends is - What story is your life being lived within?

The contrast between the Christian and secular grand narratives is very clear

Which one is really supported by the evidence?

And which one gives you a basis for hope, meaning and purpose in life?

Our story, His story

When we believe in Jesus, the story of our life joins the story God has been making all along

Our story becomes part of God's story

Creation,
God made everything

Fall into sin, true moral guilt

Revelation of truth in scripture

Jesus' life, death and resurrection

New life:
Forgiveness
Salvation
Discipleship

Return of Jesus and judgment

Resurrection,
new heavens and a new earth

A perfect
beginning

It all went wrong

God showed the way home

On the cross
Jesus solved
the problem

The solution:
forgiveness and a new life
starting now

God will deal with all the wrong in the world, deliverance is coming

Being raised from the dead to a new eternal life, a perfect future
await us

*In becoming a Christian, the story of our life is joined into the story of salvation
the Christian Grand Narrative*

From our perspective, secular people are adrift on a vast ocean without any certainties, on a self-assembled raft, trying to stay afloat

From their perspective there may be nothing wrong with their life!

We can't dismantle their raft without first showing them that they have a viable alternative

"Always be prepared to give an answer to everyone who asks you to give a reason for the hope that you have.

But do this with gentleness and respect."

1 Peter 3:15

We must approach secular people with compassion for their situation and sensitivity to their values even where we disagree

Secular people are not all the same in how they think

The young are very different from older generations

For a long time evolution has been one of the most common stumbling blocks to faith. It offered an answer to the question:

Where have I come from?

“Those rejecting religious belief cite scientific theories of unguided chemical and biological evolution more frequently than any other reason for their loss of faith.”

Stephen Meyer in The Return of the God Hypotheses, Three Scientific Discoveries that Reveal the Mind Behind the Universe

Now, young people are being indoctrinated into a much more radical secularism that presents significantly greater challenges to Christian belief and witness. Newer radical secularism is increasingly intolerant of Christian beliefs.

Many young people have no idea where or how to find a satisfactory answer to the most fundamental questions such as:

Who am I?

Many Christians have not taken the time to understand how radical are the shifts in thinking that are occurring in secular countries

If secular people think about belief at all, what questions do they ask?

Does God even exist?

Isn't the Bible all just made up stories?

Doesn't evolution prove the Bible is just myth and fables?

Isn't God just part of patriarchal power domination?

Does truth even exist, is your "truth" the same as "my truth"?

If God does exist, why does he allow suffering?

Surely, I am who I feel I am? Who are you to disagree?

Is secular society sawing off the branch it is sitting on?

These questions from secular people are an expression of a fundamental challenge to the whole Christian worldview and in fact to the very foundation of our societies that are built on it

How aware are you of the questions secular culture is asking?

Secularism – the core ideas that characterise our age

Secular people hold a combination of ideas that are interrelated and which make them highly immune to Biblical Christianity. These ideas stand in direct opposition to the gospel. They are contrasted here with God's revelation in the Bible. Many other statements in scripture could be added.

Life can, and probably should, be lived without God. (Absolute personal autonomy) vs Romans 6:16 "You are slaves to the one whom you obey – whether you are slaves to sin, which leads to death, or to obedience which leads to righteousness."

Everything can be explained in purely physical terms e.g. evolution, with no possibility of God acting into our lives from the outside. (Naturalism) vs 2 Peter 3:5 "But they deliberately forget that long ago by God's word the heavens existed and the earth was formed."

The Bible is just stories made up by people. There is no revelation of anything by God. (Naturalism, humanism) vs Isaiah 45:18,19 "I am the LORD, and there is no other. I have not spoken in secret, from somewhere in a land of darkness; I have not said to Jacob's descendants, 'Seek me in vain.' I, the LORD, speak truth; I declare what is right."

Hope and meaning only come as a leap of "faith" away from the realm of rational thought and "reliable" knowledge like science. (Leap of faith) vs John 20:31, on Jesus miracles; "But these are written that you may believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, and that by believing you may have life in his name."

The individual decides how to live their life and what is right and wrong for them. There is no objective truth, everything is relative, there are no absolutes. (Relativism and Individualism) vs 2 Thessalonians 2:10 "They perish because they refused to love the truth and so be saved."

The purpose of life is "freedom", through the pursuit of personal pleasure with no boundaries, promising no consequences (Hedonism), but it fails to deliver. (Despair) vs John 8:36 "So, if the Son sets you free, you will be free indeed."

The Secular Life

Life arose uncaused, by random chance in a purposeless universe. Time + chance = us

Our story has no ultimate meaning

The secular alternative to faith in Jesus

Consequences of secular beliefs

Nothing is not some kind of something. So we don't ultimately know where we came from

No initial cause. There is no intention or purpose to existence

Impersonal matter + time does not lead to personality and mind

Jesus was at most just a moral teacher

No real truth, just what seems to work psychologically

No real moral guilt, just guilty feelings and nothing to heal them

No God acting into real history in the beginning, the past, or the future

The secular grand narrative is a journey of despair

How radical is the process of becoming a Christian?

Jesus: "No one can see the kingdom of God unless he is born again."
John 3:3 NIV

"You should not be surprised at me saying, 'You must be born again.'"
John 3:7 NIV

For these fish, this tank is the universe

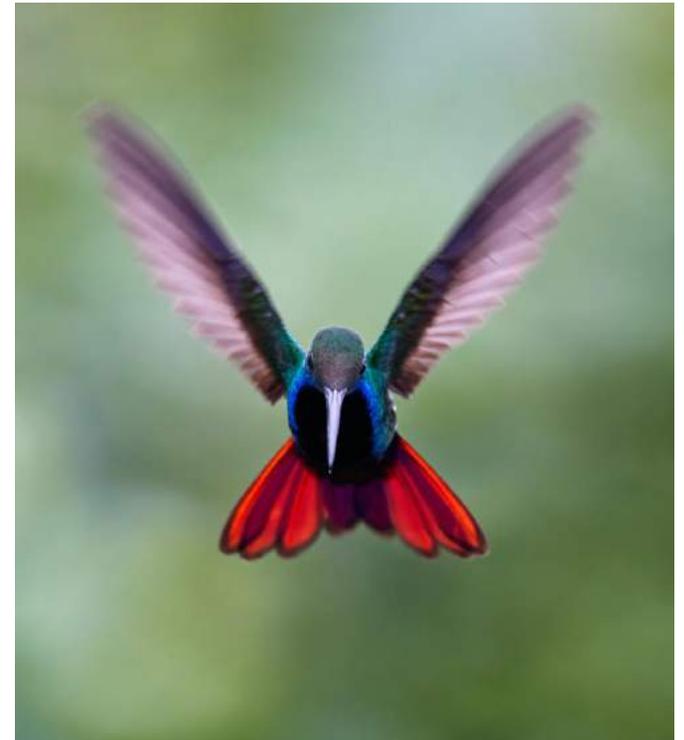

But, this bird exists in another dimension

Paul: "Don't let the world around you squeeze you into its own mould, but let God re-make you so that your whole attitude of mind is changed."

Romans 12:2 J. B. Phillips

"Do not conform any longer to the pattern of this world, but be transformed by the renewing of your mind."

Romans 12: NIV

An analogy - Becoming a Christian is like getting a new operating system

Imagine the secular person as operating on Windows 95

You might think the solution is an update to the latest version of Windows

But what they really need is a whole new operating system—not Ubuntu Linux but

HoS 1.0! Heavenly operating system

In other words, becoming a Christian means developing a whole new way of thinking and looking at the world. A worldview is like an operating system for our perception, our thinking, our beliefs and consequently our actions. It shapes what we perceive and how we respond to information

It is very easy to underestimate the scale of change in someone's thinking that is required to leave secularism and embrace Christianity

A worldview is like an operating system

It frames our perception, our thinking, our beliefs and consequently our actions

Christian, biblical operating system

In a Christian worldview everything is within the frame of our operating system in a coherent way of thinking based on solid evidence

God exists
Truth exists
Science: Creation History: The resurrection
Personality: We are made in image of God
The Bible: God has communicated
Prophecy: authority of the Bible can be tested
Result: there is a solid basis for hope and meaning and purpose in our lives

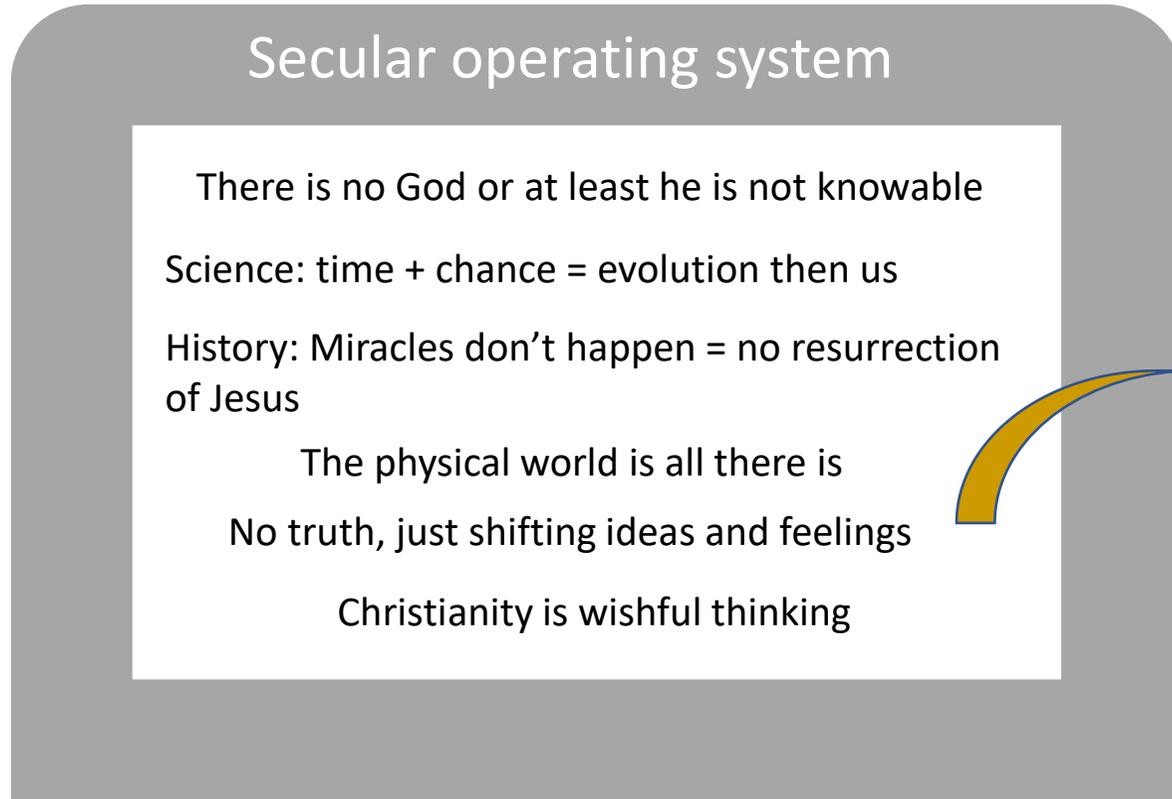

The Christian worldview shapes how Christians think.

There is no leap of faith but instead faith is based on sufficient evidence!

The secular operating system is very constrained

The way in which secular people think excludes any sufficient basis for belief or hope

In the secular worldview truth, faith and real hope do not fit in the system of thinking, secular presuppositions such as Naturalism¹ exclude them

Secular "Hope" is a leap of faith away from what we know for certain

The secular worldview can only offer a leap of faith towards hope and meaning, there is no basis for them

¹ Naturalism is the assumption that the physical world is all there is. There is no spiritual or non-physical dimension. Evolution assumes this.

How does secular thinking work?

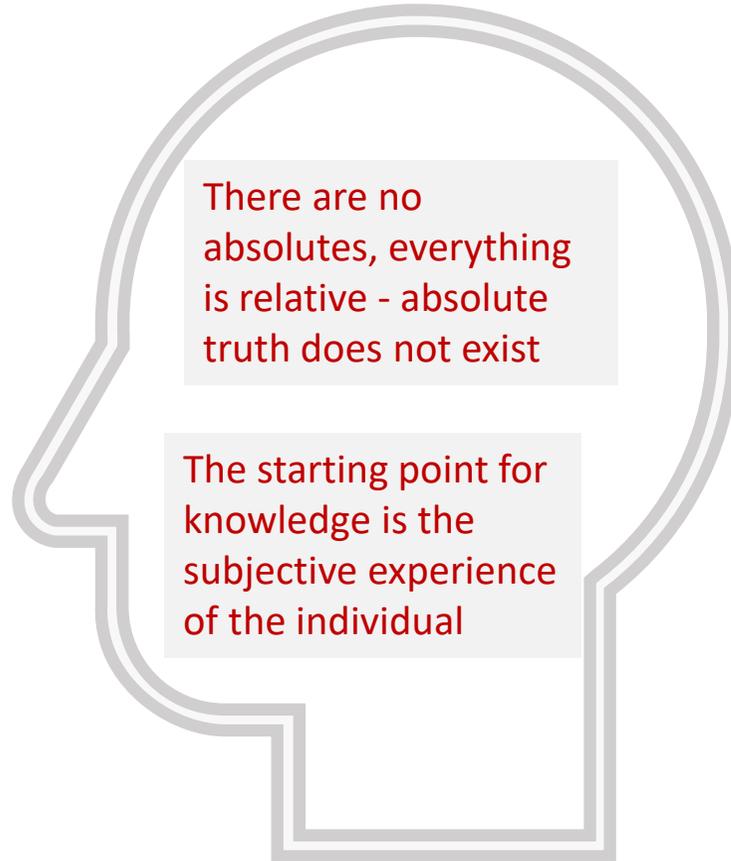

Secular thinking denies the existence of truth and has no means for finding “true” truth

We cannot join up our understanding of everything into one complete coherent system

Religious “truth” and “faith” are separated from history and science

Science is reliable, religion is not

Everything is relative, so there are no moral absolutes
Everything is shades of grey...

Either there is no basis for knowing whether God exists - agnosticism or
There is no God – atheism

There is no basis for God to reveal anything to us

There is no objective transcendent reality

“Faith” is not rational and is a leap away from the world of reason and rationality

Meaning and purpose are sought in a leap away from the rational – but are not found, leading to despair

The secular mind

The secular way of thinking has become universal in the west and infiltrated how a lot of Christians think as well

How does Christian thinking work?

The critical question is: What is truth and what is the method of finding it?

It is possible to have a rational, coherent, comprehensive system of thinking.

History and science are integrated into belief.
e.g. Creation not evolution
e.g. The literal physical resurrection of Jesus as a real historic event

There are absolutes, and we recognize morality is built into the very fabric of reality

Right and wrong are revealed by God

God exists and is knowable

There is an objective transcendent reality

God has communicated with us objectively, clearly and we can know and understand what He has revealed

Faith is not a leap but a reasonable step based on good evidence

Faith is based on truth and gives meaning and purpose and hope through credible answers to questions such as:
Where have we come from?
Why are we here?
Where are we going?

Truth exists
If something is true
the opposite is not

The starting point for all knowledge is the existence of God and that He has communicated with us

The Christian mind

Before 1890 in Europe and 1935 in USA almost everyone thought in this way¹ – Adventism still does

From life without Jesus to a better place

A leap of faith will not get you there!

You need a bridge built on sufficient evidence

To get to a place of hope

You can find the bridge to faith in Jesus with a new way of thinking based on good evidence in all these areas:

- God is there and hears our prayers
- Real truth exists, no more relativism and shades of grey
- He made everything, including the world of words and concepts
- He has communicated to us reliably in the Bible
- He came as Jesus to show us what He is like
- Jesus died and rose again in real history
- Jesus gives life to those who believe in Him – e.g. believing that He is the Son of God who dealt with all the wrong we have done and has risen from the dead to give us eternal life

There is much to explore to make sense of each of these elements of Christian belief

The nature of truth and how to find it is the key issue

The testimony of the external world and the testimony of what we can know about ourselves point us to God

We must take people to the evidence

But more importantly we must make sure they understand what truth is and what it is based upon

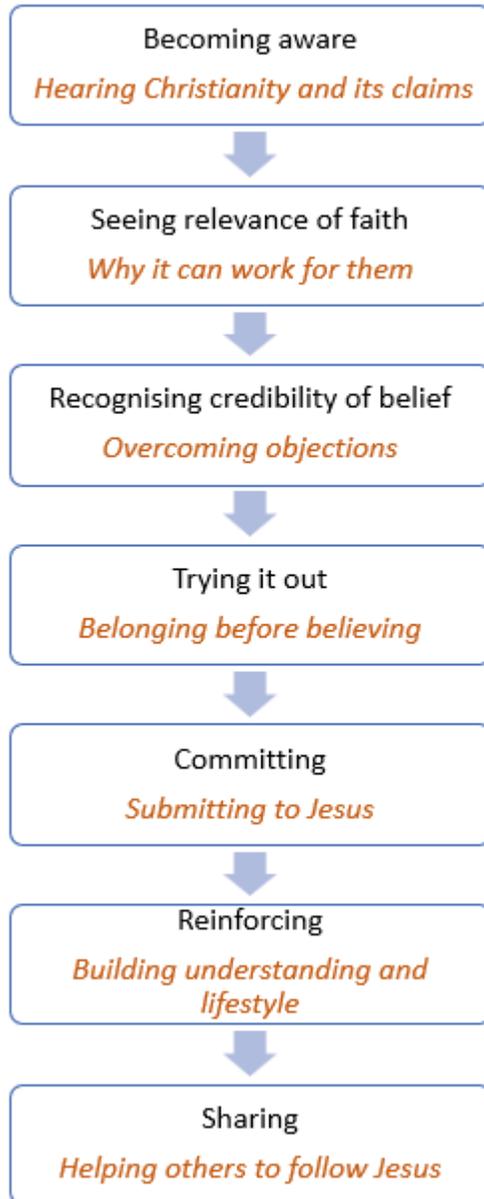

*“There is no use talking today until the presuppositions are taken into account, and especially the crucial presuppositions concerning the nature of truth and the method of attaining truth.” Francis Schaeffer, in *The God Who is There

Before a secular person is ready to become a Christian we must ensure they understand the following:

- 1 “We must make sure that the individual understands that we are talking about real truth, and not something vaguely religious which seems to work psychologically.
- 2 We must make sure that he understands that we are talking about real guilt before God, and we are not offering him merely relief for his guilty feelings.
- 3 *We must make sure that we are talking to him about real history, and that the death of Jesus was not just an ideal or a symbol but a fact of space and time... that if you had been there that day, you could have rubbed your finger on the cross and got a splinter in it.” Francis Schaeffer, in *The God Who is There

Real truth is the only basis for real faith

The growth process

Steps on the journey to faith in Jesus

For secular people starting with no Christian background it can be a long journey to faith in Jesus

Their understanding will go through many stages

It will often take several years

(Flowchart adapted and extended from Keller, 1995)

Experiences on the route to faith

(Adapted and extended from Keller, 1995)

Experiences on the journey to faith

Secular people will need to go through a range of experiences

Those experiences may not come in this order

(Flowchart adapted and extended from Keller, 1995)

Pre-evangelism and presuppositions

Christians need to engage with the most basic assumptions secular people have about where they came from, why they are here and how they should live, if we want to communicate hope and meaning

Christian worldview

God made everything, so life was intended to be

We have a personality and we are valuable because we are made in the image of God

Right and wrong are real and people are in rebellion against God

God has revealed himself in scripture and has made prophecies about the future we can test

Jesus shows us what God is really like and He offers us eternal life starting now

The point of life is to know God and to love Him and to love others

Following Jesus brings peace of mind and hope

Secular worldview

The universe just happened and life arose by chance

We are the result of random chance. We construct our own identity

Right and wrong are what you decide for yourself or we agree together

Science is the most reliable knowledge we have and not compatible with faith

This life is all there is (Atheism) or Everyone goes to heaven, no judgement (A secular leap of faith)

Do what you please but try not to hurt anyone

Decide for yourself how you want to live your life

Table adapted and simplified from The Possibility of Belief by Duncan Bayliss

The 'Grand Story' Christians live within tells us that we are each of immense value because we were intentionally made in the image of God. We are so valuable to Him that he embodied Himself in Jesus to connect with us and bring peace, hope and purpose

The journey of discovery of truth

*The journey into historical, Biblical Christian faith takes a secular person a long way away from their secular presuppositions. Secular society has lost the concept of real truth and with it hope

Key steps of the journey into truth

God is really there, outside of and before all else

God made everything: space, time, and all aspects of reality, including words, concepts, meaning, purpose, hope

God has acted into history in an objective and testable way

God has spoken into our reality in scripture and made predictions about the future we can know and test

Right and wrong are not subjectively defined, or relative or pluralistic but absolute as revealed by God

We are separated from God by evil, within us and in the world around us

We have an absolute need of forgiveness; God doing what we cannot do

We contribute nothing to our rescue

Jesus was God “embodying himself in human form”, born into a humble life, he taught, was crucified and came to life again with a real physical body, bringing eternal life

The words historic Biblical Christianity uses

God is the great “I am” transcendent and eternal

Creation not evolution

The Bible is real history and eye-witness testimony

Revelation and prophecy

“True truth” not just the content of truth but the very concept of truth based on antithesis (Francis Schaeffer, The God Who is There)

Sin

Grace, leading to justification

All of grace not of works

The full divinity of Jesus Christ, his virgin birth, crucifixion for our sins and resurrection (and one day we will be resurrected too)

Table adapted and simplified from The Possibility of Belief by Duncan Bayliss and The God Who is There by Francis Schaeffer

Every point of this journey is in direct opposition to the secular worldview

Implications for sharing our faith 1

Those studying how to reach secular people suggest they often need to start with experience not theology. (But Christians doing kind and helpful things can be no more than social work)

We must get better at relating Christian belief to the secular mindset. (But the 'sufficient evidence for faith' can be just an academic exercise)

Experience + sufficient evidence is not enough on its own. Much prayer is needed for God to win the battle and open hearts to Him

Implications for sharing our faith 2

Finding points of contact to open up conversations

We can begin by helping people
experience
Christian spirituality

Not just lifestyle but intentionally challenging secular thinking:
Faith comes by hearing truth and content

Helping people completely change their way of thinking: "True truth" - a strong concept of truth, no relativism

Helping people experience the reality of the Christian life and begin a journey of discipleship

But we help people move on to content by directly tackling secular presuppositions with good evidence

We need to help people encounter all of these areas and more, though they will do so in different orders

- Creation not evolution. Science can support faith
- The Bible as history. It is testable and reliable - prophecy
- The reliability of the transmission of scripture
- The reality of the physical resurrection of Jesus

We can give people a solid and reasonable basis for faith, to back up the experience of faith

Challenging our model of sharing

What are we thinking when we share our faith?

“We have the truth and you need to change to be like us”

or

“Join us on a journey of seeking Jesus who is truth”

Secular people are likely to experience the reality of Christian spirituality first, and to then understand Christian truth more fully, not the other way round

Many secular people do not feel a need of any kind of organised religion in their life. They don't feel any need to change. But when we look at the foundations of their worldview it is very shakyand when a crisis comes they often find they have nothing much to fall back on.

Can they see faith modelled in our lives that works?

Do we have something they would want to have as well?

Do we do anything they value and would join in with?

How does Adventism see itself?

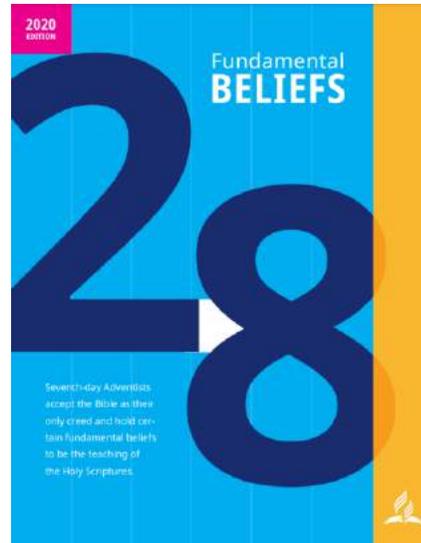

How accurate are these simple statements?

New England in the 1800s

We understand early Adventists as seeing themselves continuing the Reformation and recovering truth
"We have the truth!"

The 10/40 window and China

Islam and Marxism/ Communism are still the strongest persecutors of Christians
"We follow Jesus the Son of the one true God"

Central and South America

Many Adventists see themselves as defined in opposition to Catholicism and its errors
"We are avoiding the 'Mark of the beast'"

Europe

Secularism has done more to empty Christian churches in the west than anything that has come before it
"We are not sure what secularism is, or how to respond to it" ????

Isn't secularism, which is becoming increasingly radical, the main challenge to Christianity in Europe?

How do we see ourselves in relation to secularism? Do we really understand it and know how to respond?

Adventism in Europe has focused on teaching doctrines and much less on discipleship

What typically happens when people join the Adventist Church?

“Usually there is a brief orientation/training for new members on basic doctrinal teachings and the unique characteristics of that particular church. Then there is the assumption that the new believer will be assimilated into the church. Unfortunately, an intentional and real discipleship process is, in most cases, fully ignored.

As Dan Kohn asserts: “What is missed is the in-depth, extensive orientation to being a ‘student of Christ’ in order to be a well-prepared, inspired ‘follower of Christ’.

Limited is the ‘classroom’ training, let alone the complete absence of experiential learning, which Christ strongly emphasized with His first disciples. Jesus spent very little time inside temple walls” (2010:12).

The result? Non-functional church members and a great many “pew sitters” who attend worship, but very few passionate followers of Jesus Christ who minister during the ordinary days of the week.” Gonçalves (2014)

Kleber De Oliveira Gonçalves is the founding and senior pastor of New Seed SDA Church in Sao Paulo, Brazil. He is also the Director of the Center for Secular and Postmodern Studies for Adventist Mission of the General Conference

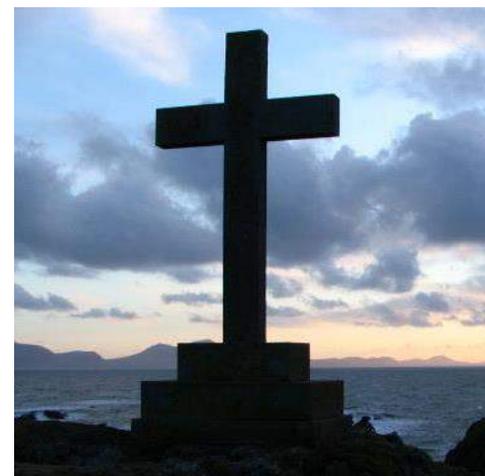

Image of cross : Duncan Bayliss

Is this an accurate picture of your experience of church? Do you want to change it?

Where do we start?

Pre-evangelism built on experiencing the reality of Jesus must then lead to truth

“One of the major opportunities postmodern sensitive churches have in dealing with postmoderns is provided by the belief that Jesus Christ, through his Spirit, is real and is active in everyday life. Postmoderns are more likely to accept the Christian faith through real spiritual experiences, which leads to accepting doctrines, rather than through mere intellectual exercise.” Gonçalves (2014)

It often begins with experience rather than doctrine

“Richardson notes: “Today we need a personal, experiential approach to answering questions and defending our faith that is informed by good philosophy, and good evidence. But we must start with personal experience.” In the postmodern condition, Christian apologetics has its value and importance, but it should shift its focus from attempting to convince, to encouraging the postmodern seeker to have a personal encounter with Jesus Christ in an experiential, personal, and practical way.” Gonçalves (2014)

For secular people experience often comes first but it must then lead on to truth

How can we make connections to get started?

Adventism has emphasised a cognitive approach to faith. To say to people who do not have a strong concept of truth, "We have the truth" is not convincing. So how can we make connections to help start them on a journey of faith?

Secular people are often more likely to engage with activities outside a church setting and to experience faith in action before they are willing to engage with faith as teaching. Truth is central, but they must be willing to hear us.

Community service projects with secular people joining in - action giving credibility to teaching

Reading and discussing the Bible as a text (not for doctrinal proof) letting the stories speak into people's lives

Addressing the weaknesses of the key elements of secularism, such as evolution showing how science itself does not support evolution and that Biblical Christianity has a coherent and complete and credible understanding of all of reality – where we came from, why we are valuable, why we are here, where we are going

Prayer with people as a path to finding meaning and purpose, by encountering the reality of the transcendent

What other ways can we make connections and open conversations?

What are Adventists doing to reach secular people?

Zero Church, Madrid

In Madrid in 2016 the Spanish Union of SDAs started Zero Church. It is near the geographical centre of Spain, point Zero, but it is also reaching people for Jesus who are starting with little or no Christian background.

Pastor Jonathan Contero says the church has three levels of discipleship:

First, community oriented projects, this is the first point of contact for most people. Many non-Adventists participate in these projects. If they become more interested in the church they are invited to church meetings.

Second, Zero Church on Sabbath morning. The talks and discussions are oriented to spiritual matters but aim to meet people where they are at, rather than where Adventists are at.

Third, Sabbath School on Friday night to help committed believers grow in their faith with in-depth Bible study.

Find out more at:

<https://cspm.globalmissioncenters.org/starting-from-zero>

After 17 months the church grew from 8 people starting it, to more than 80 regularly attending, over half of whom are experiencing and exploring church for the first time.

What lessons are there from projects like Zero Church?

Community projects help make connections.

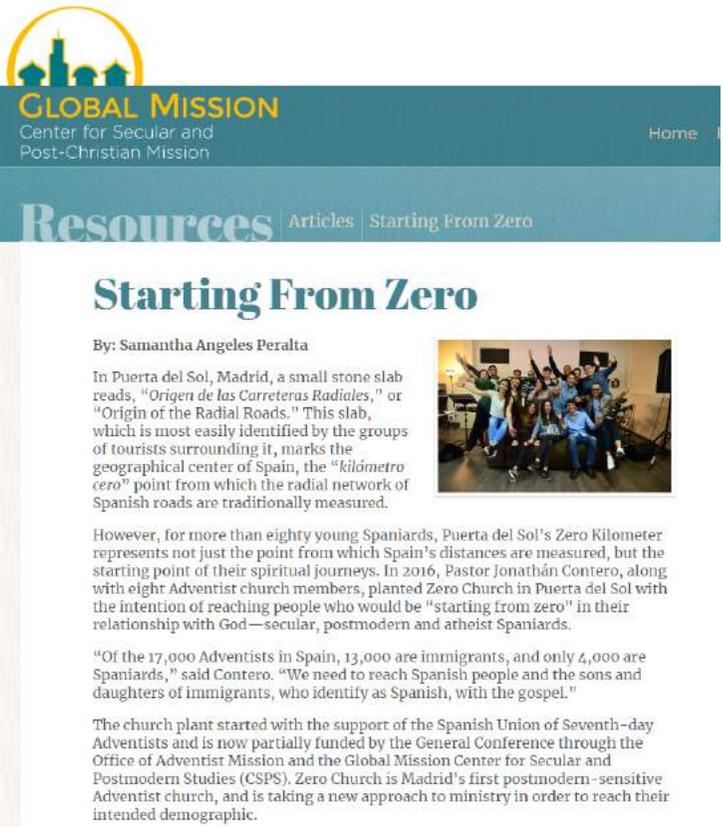

Lifestyle is not enough. We have to have the courage to share truth about Jesus, but we need connections so that people are willing to hear us.

Starting where people are at, rather than where we are at, is vital.

“As Adventists, we tend to begin the conversation with theology or religion,” he said. “But non-religious and postmodern people reject the Bible, they reject institutionalized religion—but they are open to spirituality. We need to meet them where they are, not where we are.” Jonathan Contero,

<https://cspm.globalmissioncenters.org/starting-from-zero>

There won't be fast “results” but starting and continuing along the life-long journey of discipleship is what is important.

Starting From Zero

By: Samantha Angeles Peralta

In Puerta del Sol, Madrid, a small stone slab reads, “Origen de las Carreteras Radiales,” or “Origin of the Radial Roads.” This slab, which is most easily identified by the groups of tourists surrounding it, marks the geographical center of Spain, the “kilómetro cero” point from which the radial network of Spanish roads are traditionally measured.

However, for more than eighty young Spaniards, Puerta del Sol’s Zero Kilometer represents not just the point from which Spain’s distances are measured, but the starting point of their spiritual journeys. In 2016, Pastor Jonathán Contero, along with eight Adventist church members, planted Zero Church in Puerta del Sol with the intention of reaching people who would be “starting from zero” in their relationship with God—secular, postmodern and atheist Spaniards.

“Of the 17,000 Adventists in Spain, 13,000 are immigrants, and only 4,000 are Spaniards,” said Contero. “We need to reach Spanish people and the sons and daughters of immigrants, who identify as Spanish, with the gospel.”

The church plant started with the support of the Spanish Union of Seventh-day Adventists and is now partially funded by the General Conference through the Office of Adventist Mission and the Global Mission Center for Secular and Postmodern Studies (CSPS). Zero Church is Madrid’s first postmodern-sensitive Adventist church, and is taking a new approach to ministry in order to reach their intended demographic.

There is not just one approach to copy, it will need to fit to the community

Some practical recommendations for implementing these ideas, based on the experience of Adventists

Kleber De Oliveira Gonçalves is the founding and senior pastor of New Seed SDA Church in Sao Paulo, Brazil. Some suggestions of his are set out here:

“First, a new culture based on relational discipleship must be created in the church. Discipleship cannot be seen as an event or a training seminar that takes place for a few hours once a week within a church building.

*Second, the church must promote urban mission models that foster continuous experiential learning in the context of community.

*Third, the church must develop multiple assessment tools to measure church “success,” where discipleship becomes a priority. Counting baptisms is not enough.

Fourth, the church must implement theological training... that places intentional emphasis on discipleship as a process and that promotes relational discipleship opportunities for every student.

Finally, to reach emerging postmodern generations with the gospel, the local urban church must recover its uniqueness and identity as a sent community, recognizing that it is its responsibility to develop discipleship as the only Christian lifestyle in order to contextually, incarnationally, intentionally and successfully—follow the steps of the Master.” Gonçalves (2014)

It is a real challenge for Adventism to develop such new ways of thinking and discipling

Haven't we got the outline of an antidote to secularism already?

Foundational lies of secularism

There is no God, or at least one who is knowable

Right and wrong are just relative?

Everything just evolved by chance

This life is all there is, or Everyone goes to heaven

A blackhole

Hope

Revelation 14

"Fear God and give Him glory...

The hour of His judgement is come...

Worship Him who made the heavens and the earth

Their deeds will follow them..."

Isn't there a direct confrontation between secularism and Christianity?

And we have advance warning of the false answers to secularism to help people avoid them

Warning about the wrong response to secularism

False religion will not save you

Watch out, coercion will be used to enforce false religion

Cultural Christianity is not enough

666

Revelation 14

“Fallen is Babylon...

If anyone worships the beast and his image... he too will drink of the wine of God's fury...

This calls for patient endurance...”

999 (or 112)

Maybe instead of talking to people about “3 angels” we should actually give their messages!

More about the antidote to secularism

A Christian understanding of truth as revealed by God gives hope and meaning

It is worth emphasising how clear Revelation 14 is in contrast to the predominant secularism of our age and to compromised Christianity.

Revelation 14 directly challenges and refutes the dominant method of thinking and its false conclusions.

In secularism, “faith” and meaning are separated from science and history. Absolute truth is denied. Hope is lost.

In contrast, God’s warning to the world could not be clearer:

He exists. All knowledge begins from that fact.

Right and wrong are real. Judgement is coming.

Our response should be to worship Him because He made everything, and He will call all into judgement, with consequences that will last for eternity.

Isn't it amazing that the antidote to secularism was given in prophecy 2000 years ago?!

If we have the antidote to secularism we can't remain silent or just talking to ourselves

The context varies a lot across Europe

Their path to secularism varies but most European countries are heading in an increasingly secular direction

Our understanding and response to secularism must be contextualised to each country.

North to South and East to West, Europe varies a lot

“In a very real sense, Europe can be called post-evangelised. Talking about the Gospel gives the impression of presenting ‘old news’ instead of ‘good news’”.

Evert Van De Pol (2013)

The percentage of people for whom religion is important is very low in many European countries. (see: The Atlas Of European Values)
www.atlasofeuropeanvalues.eu

The comfortable days will soon be over

“A time of painful testing, even persecution, is coming. Lukewarm or shallow Christians will not come through with their faith intact. Christians today must dig deep into the Bible and church tradition and teach themselves how and why today’s post-Christian world with its self-centredness, its quest for happiness and rejection of sacred order and transcendent values, is a rival religion to authentic Christianity. We should also see how many of the world’s values have been absorbed into Christian life and practice.”

Rob Dreher, (2020) Live not by lies, a manual for Christian dissidents, page 162

Revelation 3:16 “because you are lukewarm, I am about to spit you out of my mouth.”

*Haven’t we known this for more than a century?
Other Christians are now seeing the same issues*

Some examples of ideas and content we can share to help people move beyond secularism

Example 1 - DNA, information and God

There is good evidence from the science on DNA for the existence of biological information and thus there is the reasonable inference to God as its source

Example 2 – The Bible and history

The Book of Acts is anchored in detailed history and eye witness testimony

Tackling secular presuppositions – some examples

The following section gives some examples of the types of evidence we can share with secular people, responding to the basic assumptions of their worldview

Secular presupposition	Refuting evidence
Naturalism (also called scientific materialism) – i.e. that physical matter is all there is	There is good evidence from the science of DNA for the existence of information and thus God
Evolution made all life	There is good evidence that time + chance cannot create anything
The Bible is unreliable and miracles don't happen	There is good evidence that the Bible is reliable history and eye-witness testimony

It is secularism that is built on a shaky foundation, not Christian faith

Let's look at these examples in a bit more detail

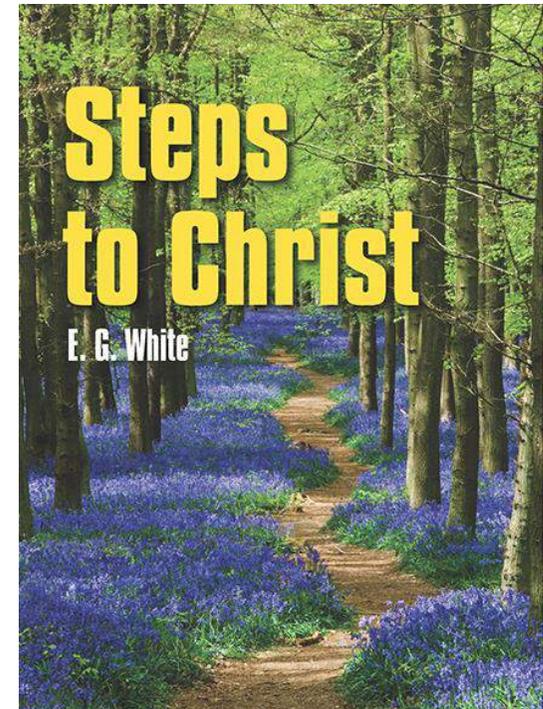

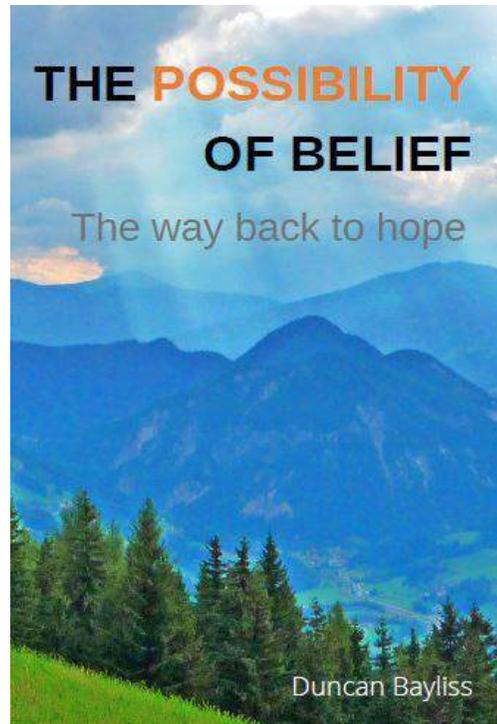

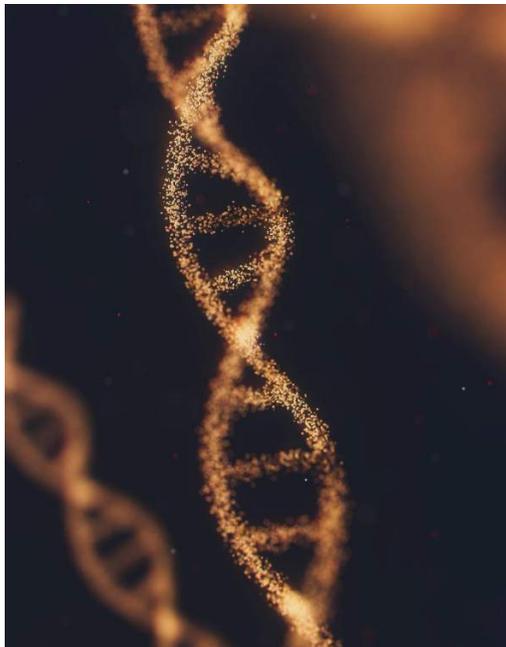

Example 1 - DNA, information and God

Is there any evidence there is a God?

Let's start here
with DNA

Or here

Rather than starting here

DNA, information and God

Electron microscope image of DNA

There is good evidence from the science on DNA for the existence of biological information and thus there is the reasonable inference to God as its source

Science need not be in conflict with faith

Schematic diagram of the DNA helix

Evolution claims the physical and material are all there is i.e. all life arose from natural causes alone with no involvement of the supernatural

Electron microscope image of DNA

Is that a reasonable claim?

The astonishing digital world is made up of 1s and 0s –as code

DNA is made up of 4 chemicals abbreviated to A,C,G and T
They are free to associate in any order so that they can act as a chemical coding system for life. There are about 3 billion letters in the DNA code in every cell in our bodies¹

There is nothing about their chemistry or the chemistry around them that controls how they are ordered, but their specific ordering is meaningful because it codes for the manufacture and control of other chemicals that make life – they carry information. They are also a code

Get the A,C,G and Ts in the wrong order and you are likely to be diseased or dead!

Computer codes don't self assemble, someone's mind is the source of the information.

So where did the information in DNA come from?

Stephen Meyer calls this the designer's 'Signature in the Cell' (also the title of his book)

Implication of DNA - We live in a word based universe!

Even down to the very information within every cell in our bodies

“In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. He was with God in the beginning. Through him all things were made; without him nothing was made that has been made.” John 1:1,2

*“In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth....
And God said, “Let there be light.””* Genesis 1:1,2

Before anything existed it was conceived in the mind of God. Mind is more fundamental than matter!
God spoke and matter and energy came in to existence, as well as the realm of our minds!

When we find God's 'Signature in the cell', it encourages us that it is meaningful to seek out the God who made everything. We are more than just atoms and energy, physics and chemistry. The realm of personality, language and concepts are real because the God who is there made them too.

“You will seek me and find me when you seek me with all your heart.” Jeremiah 29:13

Mind is more fundamental than matter!

Some more big numbers from science

A typical cell in our bodies may contain 42 million proteins ¹

There are 30-40 trillion cells of 200 different types in our bodies ²

We can estimate that approximately 400 billion synchronised chemical reactions per second occur in our bodies for us to be alive ³

Yet, the information to make this possible is contained within our DNA.

The only explanation evolution has to offer for how this complexity arose is random chance plus time and we have just seen some of the severe practical limits to what is possible by random chance.

Whereas, to explain what we find we need to invoke information, a plan and intention, and as soon as there is a plan and intention you have design and a designer: in short God.

“Intelligence is the most causally adequate explanation of the origin of the information necessary for life.” Stephen Meyer, Signature in the Cell

Science looked at dispassionately does not produce evidence that undermines faith

² Bianconi et al, An estimation of the number of cells in the human body

³ Isabel Moraes cited in The Possibility of Belief by Duncan Bayliss

When we look carefully at the world around us
there is no excuse for atheism of any kind

“..since what may be known about God is plain to them, because God has made it plain to them. For since the creation of the world God’s invisible qualities – his eternal power and divine nature – have been clearly seen, being understood from what has been made, so that men are without excuse.”

Romans 1:19,20

Example 2 – The Bible and history

Corinth

The Book of Acts is anchored in detailed history and eye witness testimony

Secular people often claim that the Bible is totally unreliable and just made up stories

But the deeper you dig into Luke's writing, as an example, the better it gets

Luke uses the Greek method of synchronisms to give an accurate date
He refers to a series of important historical figures to achieve this

"In the fifteenth year of the reign of Tiberius Caesar – when Pontius Pilate was governor of Judea, Herod Tetrarch of Galilee, his brother Phillip tetrarch of Iturea and Traconitis, and Lysanius tetrarch of Abilene – during the high priesthood of Annas and Caiaphas, the word of the Lord came to John." (Luke 3 vs 1)

Luke was clearly confident of getting his facts straight!

This is real history anchored in real people and real places, from a credible source

Jerusalem

Luke names so many places and puts them in the correct geographical order in the Acts of the Apostles, it is clear this is anchored in reality – real geography and real history

One study looked at Luke's references to 32 countries, 54 cities, and 9 islands and found no mistakes.

(Norman Geisler and Thomas Howe, When Critics Ask, page 385)

Where Luke was present in what he is describing, we get a lot of detail such as in the shipwreck with Paul

Where he wasn't present but reporting his investigations, we get much less detail

What is the reasonable conclusion? This is real history, plus Luke didn't make up what he didn't know!

Luke has been shown to be correct in many incidental details

Acts 19 vs 22 when Paul was in Corinth,
Luke refers to Erastus (a Christian convert)

Paul later refers to an Erastus “who is the city’s Director of public works,” (Romans
16 vs 23)

In 1929 an inscription was found dating from the mid First Century, stating, “Erastus, in return for his aedileship, laid this pavement at his own expense.”

For more detail see C. Anderson and B. Edwards, Evidence for the Bible, page 166

Erastus stone Corinth

Luke wrote about real people who actually lived

*For people accustomed to thinking that religious faith is a leap away from evidence, the Bible seems so
'unreligious', it is the actions of God in the lives of real people and real history*

We can also explore evidence in all these areas that supports Christian belief as reasonable and credible

“The universe and all of reality around us points to a designer and an ultimate cause: God.

Random chance can explain nothing of our origins because it can create nothing.

We experience a moral dimension to our existence; all people everywhere do.

There is a moral law within us and there is a non-material reality of right and wrong that we all experience.

We have minds and we experience that non-material reality. Our own thought processes are proof to us that we are more than just physics and chemistry.

We have reliable versions of what was originally written in the books making up the Christian Bible and they are anchored in history.

Jesus existed as an historical figure.

Jesus was God embodying himself in human form.

Jesus' death and physical resurrection proves his victory over death and makes his offer of life to us meaningful and believable.

Christian belief turns out to be true to all the evidence available to us and it offers in the life, teaching and resurrection of Jesus, real and lasting hope.”

Some suggestions for the Adventist church in Europe

We need to build a process of Adventists discovering pre-evangelism
e.g. understanding how we lay the foundation for people to be able to hear the truth (and to understand what truth is)

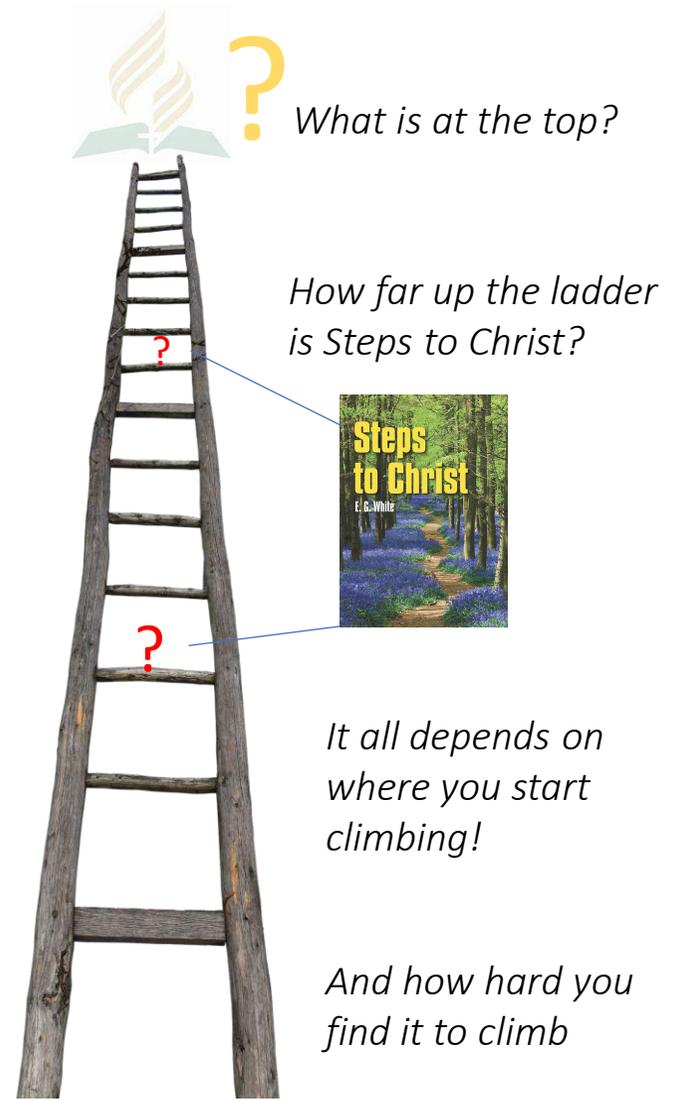

We will need to approach communicating with European society as something like cross-cultural evangelism as though we are starting for the first time – similar to Africa in 1800s to early 1900s

We need to become more visible to help people start a journey into faith in Jesus

We need to re-model evangelism as beginning a life-long journey of discipleship

There is not, nor can there be, one approach that works for all

There are no quick easy answers – this is long term engagement

Useful sources to explore and share

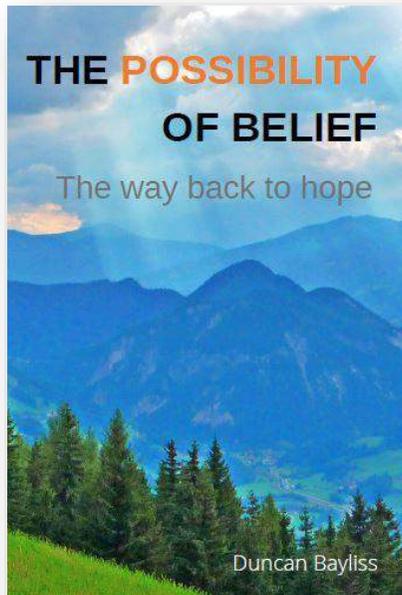

There are a lot of great resources by Adventists and other Christians that can help us be more effective in reaching out to secular people

What follows are some suggestions for books, videos, websites and references to follow up

Why not create a group of people in your local congregation who explore this material together, and then intentionally develop ways to share what you discover with non-Christian friends?

What might be good to read, then share and discuss?

Where can I find out what other Adventists are doing?

The Centre for Secular and Post-Modern Mission

Starting From Zero

By: Samantha Angeles Peralta

In Puerta del Sol, Madrid, a small stone slab reads, "Origen de las Carreteras Radiales," or "Origin of the Radial Roads." This slab, which is most easily identified by the groups of tourists surrounding it, marks the geographical center of Spain, the "kilómetro cero" point from which the radial network of Spanish roads are traditionally measured.

However, for more than eighty young Spaniards, Puerta del Sol's Zero Kilometer represents not just the point from which Spain's distances are measured, but the starting point of their spiritual journeys. In 2016, Pastor Jonathán Contero, along with eight Adventist church members, planted Zero Church in Puerta del Sol with the intention of reaching people who would be "starting from zero" in their relationship with God—secular, postmodern and atheist Spaniards.

"Of the 17,000 Adventists in Spain, 13,000 are immigrants, and only 4,000 are Spaniards," said Contero. "We need to reach Spanish people and the sons and daughters of immigrants, who identify as Spanish, with the gospel."

The church plant started with the support of the Spanish Union of Seventh-day Adventists and is now partially funded by the General Conference through the Office of Adventist Mission and the Global Mission Center for Secular and Postmodern Studies (CSPS). Zero Church is Madrid's first postmodern-sensitive Adventist church, and is taking a new approach to ministry in order to reach their intended demographic.
